What is Mars 360?

Mars 360 is a newly emerging belief system or religious paradigm revealed through prophet known as Anthony of Boston. According to its foundational text, it posits that humanity is influenced by the planet Mars (both as an astronomical body and an ancient deity) in ways that manifest as six fundamental negative personality characteristics. These traits are believed to be determined by the position of Mars at the time of a person's birth, similar to astrological principles. The core tenet is that six negative characteristics originate from the same source (Mars) and should therefore be treated as equal in moral and legal frameworks. This equality implies that societal laws and regulations must accommodate or restrict each trait to the same degree, forming the basis for a new ethical and social structure.

The system draws on astrological observations, with Anthony of Boston having accurately predicted escalations in geopolitical conflicts (such as rocket attacks on Israel, including the events of October 7th and the 12-day war between Israel and Iran) by tracking Mars's position within 30 degrees of the lunar node over six consecutive years. This predictive success is cited as validation for the paradigm. Mars is deified under the name "Armaaruss" (the god of war) to mitigate its malign influence on human behavior. Practices include creating and venerating an image of Armaaruss (a rough draft of which has been produced by a witness named Jessica Mars, with a final version in development), posting it on walls for worship, and optionally marking "Mars 360" on one's right hand or forehead as a simple entry into prayer and meditation without needing a full birth chart calculation. This framework is described as a "new moral framework" that could underpin society, emphasizing unity in human flaws under Mars's influence.
